

You had your Husky Card number written down and were told about the conduct process

Now what?

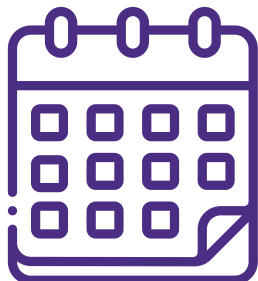

You will get an e-mail from a staff member which will explain the next steps with more information on Housing policies and the conduct process. If necessary, this e-mail will include a scheduled meeting with the staff member.

At the meeting with a staff member, you will get to share your perspective on what happened.

All students present or involved with an incident may be asked to meet with a staff member.

Many situations require two meetings and are usually resolved within two weeks.

Conduct Process

The conduct process is educational and designed to help you be more successful at UW and in future living situations. Common outcomes as a result of the conduct process include workshops and reflection papers. Termination from housing is very rare (less than 1% of situations).

92% of residents reported that the assigned sanctions were relevant given the nature of the situation.

99% of residents reported that they were given the opportunity to present their perception of the incident.
